

Matt Murray, M.D., NTREC Board Chairman, is a pediatric emergency medicine physician and health information technology (IT) advocate with a broad range of clinical and health IT experiences. In addition to over 20 years of clinical practice he has led clinical IT implementations in physician offices and hospitals as a Chief Medical Information Officer (CMIO). He remains active in a variety of local and statewide health IT initiatives, authors health IT articles, maintains a health IT blog (www.digitizedmedicine.com) and serves on the Texas Medical Association's ad hoc Health IT committee and Health Care Quality committee. As NTREC Chairman he also serves on the DFW Hospital Council Research and Foundation Board. Dr. Murray currently practices medicine at the Texas Christian University Health Center.